CLOTHING THAT SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

It is not the purpose of this to dress men better than they have ever been dressed—to provide such clothes and patterns as will express the individuality of the wearer and give genuine satisfaction. We allow no one to give a greater equivalent for your money, and the suits and overcoats we have ready, easily to want anything in the past. To men of good judgment these clothes make an appeal as immediate as they are irresistible.

We mean to make this the safest store for you to buy at every day in the year. We sell only the very best of clothing and meet on a perfect understanding with each customer. You may ask at all in buying here. Our prices are always the lowest for which the quality of clothing can be bought anywhere.

AROUND THE TOWN

Don't forget the Library concert on Friday night next.

Messrs. F. N. Ballard and A. Studer took in the excursion to Spokane last week.

Dr. and Miss Lackner returned from a trip through the north on Saturday.

The government bridge gang are erecting a new bridge over Hunn's piers bridge, on the south road.

A large number of visitors from Carleton Place and Oshawa were in Didsbury on Saturday and Tuesday attending the fair and races.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. A. Macleod attended the Convocation of the Alberta University at Strathcona on Tuesday.

Extinguished—Would the person who took an interest from the Golden West hotel, probably by mistake, please return it and obtain right one.

A. J. McKeown of London, Ont., has taken over the agency—Harcos agency in Didsbury and will be pleased to meet and get acquainted with the farmers of the district.

J. Burns of Neapolis, reports that he received a good yield of oats and barley. Out of 10 acres of oats he harvested 60 bushels to the acre, barley harvested 60 bushels to the acre.

Hon. Frank Oliver, minister of the interior and ex. clerk, Liberal candidate for the Red Deer riding will address a meeting in Didsbury Opera house on Wednesday night next at 8 o'clock.

The dance given by the Hachelors Club in the Opera House on Fair night was a success. The music was good and everybody enjoyed themselves in the wee "small" hours. There were about fifty couples present.

Alberta Levagood, and wife, of Detroit, Mich., former of Mr. I. H. Levagood, west of town is here on a visit to his brother whom he has not seen for 20 years. Mr. Levagood is much impressed with what he has seen of our district.

Miss D. C. Colvin—teacher, piano and theory, would be pleased to meet pupils desirous of securing a thorough musical training. Latest methods used. Room 1, Alexandra Hotel, Didsbury.

Dr. (Jack) Gibson of Berlin, Ont., the great hockey and football player, is visiting with Alex. Robertson, Westcott. Dr. Gibson is well known in Didsbury where he has a large number of friends.

Remember the date of S. L. TAUBE'S visit to Didsbury and if there is anything whatever wrong with your eyesight; make it a point to consult him at Chambers' drug store on Saturday, October 24th.

Gone again the W. J. Jackson property, the Central Alberta Land Co. sold the Jackson property again, this makes 3 times in 30 days this Company sold $82,200 worth of Alberta Land last week, if you have anything to sell, trade or exchange, see them, it will pay you.

A surprise party was given to Miss Edith Jackson by a number of her friends on Friday last.

The genial Noah B. Good is in town visiting friends. Noah says that business has been good in Lethbridge, where he is located.

The Olds Athletic Association will give a dance on Friday night October 30th. Keep that date open and go up and help them along and have a good time.

J. Stauffer who has been at home for some days through sickness resumed his duties as home-stead inspector on Thursday. Joe has gone to Stettler and the Hand hills country but says he will be home in time to vote.

85% of headaches are the result of eye strain. Properly fitted glasses will give permanent relief. If you are troubled that way consult S. L. TAUBE, eye-sight specialist, at Chambers' drug store on Saturday, October 24th.

Jacob C. Peters received a telegram on Thursday stating that his mother-in-law, Jacob P. Jansen, formerly of Berlin (Alta), had died on Wednesday of typhoid fever at Waldeck, Sask. Mr. Peters left on Thursday night train to attend the funeral.

One young fellow who lives west of town so far forgot himself on Fair day as to disturb the peace. He was the only one and it is hoped he has seen the error of his ways by this time although the authorities took no steps to arrest him. With the exception of this case the crowd was the quietest and most orderly that ever attended any fair.

The Library Concert
Next Friday Night.

Preparations are well underway for the Library concert which will be held in the Opera House on Friday night next. The ladies who are arranging for the concert are working hard to get up a good program and it is a well known fact that what they undertake is bound to be good. The teachers at the school are also taking great interest in the concert and are practising some of the larger classes in drills, songs, etc. It is hoped that the Opera House will be filled on that night as the concert will be good, the price of admission is low (25c), and the cause a good one. Tickets can be obtained at Chambers' drug store, Sinder & Co., the Pioneer office and from Messrs. H. B. Atkins, G. B. Sexsmith and J. E. A. Macleod on Monday.

BROKEN IN HEALTH.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored Strength After Medical Treatment Had Failed.

"I can truthfully say Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did me what one of the best doctors in Halifax failed to do—restored my health." This strong statement is made by Mr. Wm. J. Weaver, 172 Argyle St., Halifax, Mr. Weaver adds—"A few years ago I took employment in a large factory as a fireman. I knew the work would be hard, and friends told me I would never stand it, but as I was a strong man, weighing 180 pounds, I laughed at the idea of not being able to do the work. Anyhow, I started and found the job a hard one indeed. There were a number of firemen employed and men were taking and quitting the job every few days. I kept at the work for two years and during that time lost 30 pounds weight, and was a broken down man. I could not take any meals and often took my dinner back home with me without touching it. When I would be working on the night shift I could not sleep in the day time, and this added to my trouble. Finally I became a total wreck and had to quit the work. I could hardly drag myself about, and yet had become so nervous that I could not sit still and would walk about the house until I was ready to drop. The doctor came to see me every day, and changed the medicine time and again, but it did me no good. Finally he wanted me to go to the hospital, and at this stage a friend came to stay with me one night. While he was reading the evening paper he came across the testimonial of a couple of men for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He said, 'why don't you try them, nothing else is helping you and they may do you good.' He went out and got me a box at once. When this was done I got a half dozen bottles and before they were all gone I began to feel like a new man. I continued using the pills for a couple of months when I was again as well and as strong as ever. I had been in my life, and I have not been sick since. I feel confident there is no remedy in the world equal to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for building up a broken down and nervous system, and for such trouble. I would strongly recommend them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such cases as Mr. Weaver's because they make the rich blood, which feeds the starved nerves and tones the strength of every part of the body. That is why they cure anæmia, indigestion, neuritis, St. Vitus' dance, paralysis, and other troubles due to low blood and starved nerves. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Preserving Fruit.

There are two methods for preserving fruit; in one the fruit is cooked in sugar, in the other it is boiled in the syrup. The first method means slower work, but you thus retain the flavor of the fruit and the fresh, delicious color which vanishes when fruit is boiled.

Before proceeding with either method see to the fruit cans. A careful housewife washes them during the year as they are emptied, covers them and puts them away on a shelf to be in readiness for the preserving season. Even then they require sterilizing before being used, for the bacteria floating everywhere in the atmosphere require only the slightest chance for lodgment to begin fermentation.

Still, with ordinary care it is quite easy to have fruit keep, even if you live in a hot southern climate. You have simply to be sure that the can is perfectly clean and that it is airtight. To make it so, put each can in a wash-bowl of cold water, dissolving in it a little borax if you notice dirt or a crust on the cans or their lids. To keep the cans from cracking, cover the bottom of the boiler with a framework or anything which keeps the glass from the intense heat of the fire. Let the water heat slowly to a boil, then continue at the boiling point for ten minutes. Set the boiler back on a stove cover it and allow the cans to stand in the hot water until they are needed. Rinse them with fresh boiling water, and they are then ready to fill.

Wilson's Fly Pads kill them all.

"Still, the van was at the door, the lady was in arrears in her payment, and he reminded his duty."

"Good morning," said the lady. "It's a beautiful day, isn't it?"

"Yes, indeed," he agreed. "Won't you take a chair?"

"Er—no, thank you, not this morning," she stammered. "I've come to take the pain."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Had Silver Plate Inserted.
"Mr. Jones, of River Ave., Windsor, who just part of the bone in his leg from a fracture, had a silver plate inserted by Dr. F. W. E. Barnard, the Broadway surgeon."

Worried.

"Why," asked the good man's wife, "are you looking so thoughtful? You look as if something disagreeable had happened."

"Perhaps," he replied, "I am foolish to feel that I do about it. My congregation has raised a purse for the purpose of sending me to Europe."

"And are you sorry it isn't large enough to enable you to take me with you? Don't let that cause you to feel depressed. It will be very lonely here without you, but I know you need the rest and I shall be very sensible. I can spend the summer at home in quiet, inexpensive place, cheered by the thought that you will return refreshed in mind and body."

"It is very good of you to look it in that way, my dear. I appreciate your feeling. But the gentleman who made the presentation speech said he was sorry the amount that had been raised was no larger so that I might be able to remain away longer, and somehow it seemed to me that the applause was more hearty at that point than anywhere else in the course of his remarks."—Chicago Record-Herald.

NUDE STATUARY

Shocks the Sensibilities of National Vigilance Association.

When the boardings were recently removed from the sculptures on the new British Medical Association building, the Strand and near street, passer-by gasped and immediately reported the matter to W. A. Cooke, secretary of the National Vigilance Association. He took a look at the offending nude statues and informed the police, who at once ordered the statues to be put up until the responsible heads of the Medical Association could be communicated with.

"In no other city in Europe," declared the secretary of the N. V. A., "are figures in sculpture of the nature shown on the building in the Strand thrust upon the public gaze. If photographs of the statues were sold in the public streets or exposed for sale in any shop, proceedings would be taken. We intend, unless the offending figures are removed, to take action and see whether or not the law is strong enough to deal with such a display."

Said Guy Elliston, secretary of the British Medical Association: "I do not see anything objectionable in the statuary. Nude figures in themselves constitute no harm. If they were on a high level, and could be mutilated by ribald people it would be different. But they are fifty feet from the ground. When a police officer came to me concerning one of the figures on the Strand side, I went to see it. I failed to notice anything wrong, suggestive, or indecent."

George Frampton, R.A., the famous sculptor, said: "I should think the objection is in the suggestion put into the figures by the minds of the persons who complain. There is nothing objectionable in the nude. The indecency is in the minds of the people who are shocked by the figures. Many nude figures, some of them in beautiful groups, appear on our public buildings, and as long as there is no suggestiveness—why should they be termed indecent?"

Walter Crane, the well-known artist, took a similar view: "I have not seen the statues, and do not know who the sculptor is, and I can, therefore, express no opinion on their artistic merit. So far, however, as the principle involved is concerned, I am entirely in favor of frank sex representation in art."

Ceylon's Land-Leech

It is nearly always the case that exceedingly beautiful countries are overrun by different kinds of pests. Beautiful Ceylon has mosquitoes, said to be the most odious and insidious in the world, and snakes, and a thousand and more plagues of poor human beings, but the worst of them all is a leech. It is a small, slimy, blood-sucking creature about two inches long, and very nimble and quick. It will crawl up a man's leg, and traveling underneath the clothing, will climb as high as the throat. They do not crawl like the leech, but rather themselves up on their tail to reach for prey and walk off to attack it with amazing rapidity. In walking through the jungle hosts of them may be seen by the roadside, where they wait to victimize cattle. However, it is said, are driven half wild by them, and are palanquin-bearers and coolies, whose bare legs are their favorite resort, the men's hands being too engrossed to pull them off. The leeches may be seen hanging round their ankles, from which tiny trickles of blood run over the foot.

The Bajus of Borneo.

Kina Balu, the highest mountain in Borneo, rises nearly 14,000 feet above the sea level. Among the tribes to be found on the mountain are a very strange race of people called the Bajus. They trade in camphor, guggu-percha, and indiarubber. The great source of their wealth is, however, the edible birds' nests, beloved by Chinese gourmets. One of the most peculiar of their customs is the christening of a child. A feather is inserted up the baby's nostril, to tickle it; if it sneezes it is a good sign, but if not the ceremony is put off until another day. One of their most inhuman customs is that when their women are dying they are taken to the woods, and left in a hastily built hut, where only the nearest of their slaves may wait on them.

Eucharistic Congress.

Following the Pan-Atlantic, another great congress is to be assembled in London this summer. This is the Eucharistic Congress, which was first held at Avignon in 1855. It will be the greatest gathering of Roman Catholic ecclesiastics ever seen in England. The Duke of Norfolk is president of the reception committee, which is making preparations to provide suitable accommodations for the large number of clergy who will attend. There will be present several cardinals from the United States, Rome, Spain, Germany, France, Belgium and other countries. The special preacher at Westminster Cathedral will be Cardinal Gibbons.

Rat Crusade Is On.

The New Crusade for the Destruction of Vermin has started a series of competitions among rat and sparrow clubs. Prizes are offered to the clubs and individuals who destroy the greatest number of rats in a year. Every competitor must kill 100 rats to qualify for an award. It is estimated that there are from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 rats in the world, and that the damage to property amounts to several millions.

Bigger and Better Than Ever

Didsbury's sixth annual Fall Fair has come and gone leaving a record behind that will be hard to beat by any other fair held in Alberta outside of the big city fairs. The exhibition was all could be desired, and the officers and directors of the Agricultural Society who worked so strenuously to make the fair a success will have the satisfaction of knowing that their efforts are appreciated not only by the large number of entries made, but also by the extraordinary large attendance of the general public, and the officers and directors appointed for next year have a high standard set them for the fair next year.

The idea of having a two-day fair was fully justified, in fact the work could not have been done in one day. Entries last year totalled about 300, while this year they went to nearly three times that number, about 900 entries being made. H. E. Atkins, the energetic secretary of the society, has been one of the busiest workers in town the last few days and is entitled to the greatest share of credit for the great success of the fair.

Where everything was of such excellent quality it would be hard to single out any individual department for particular praise, but the lady directors are to be congratulated in the excellent showing made in their department and fully justified the expectations of the Board of Directors when they appointed them.

INSIDE EXHIBITS

The exhibits in the building caused a great deal of surprise at the excellence of the display all classes being exceptionally well filled. The ground floor was given over to fancy work, local, cakes, candies, flowers of which there was a large display; preserves, paintings, drawings, and last, but by no means least, was the display of school work which comprised drawings, writing and lotany work which had been done by the scholars of the Didsbury school. This was a new departure and enough money was subscribed by the officers of the society and those interested to give prizes for individual work. The teachers and scholars are to be commended for the very excellent showing made. Mr. Gaddess had a fine display of Christmas cards as part of the building which drew a great deal of attention. The thanks of the officers and directors of the society is extended to R. Barron, who kindly loaned a New Seal Williams piano for the occasion, and also to the ladies who supplied the music which culminated the proceedings. The top part of the building was occupied with vegetables and grain, and it is safe to say that this display could not be beaten. A representative of the Pioneer was informed by a gentleman who has travelled considerably in both Canada and the United States that the display of vegetables was fully equal to and surpassed a great many exhibits that he had seen in this line. The potatoes were exceptionally fine, one exhibit of sixteen potatoes weighing over 30 pounds. Another new feature was the exhibit of sweet corn, grown and exhibited by John Bellamy which also drew attention to the great capabilities of this district. The whole exhibit was a most creditable one. Grain was not a large exhibit owing no doubt to a lot of the farmers not having completed their threshing.

LIVE STOCK

Perhaps nothing shown at the fair interested the farmers so much as the splendid exhibit of horses to judge by the crowd that was to be found around the judging stands at all times of the day. The showing comprised horses of all kinds, sizes and ages, and no doubt the judges were hard pressed at times as to which should be prize-winners, but so far as heard there has been no complaints made and everyone seems to be well satisfied. This was a regular horse show and it was a surprise to many to see that this district has such a large representative of good horseflesh, not only in breed but in numbers as well. In conversation with Mr. Hallman of Airdrie, one of the judges, and himself owner of some of the best horses in Alberta, we were informed that outside of Calgary and Okotoks the exhibition of horses would be hard to beat. The cattle classes were not as well filled as expected but what was exhibited were good. Swine and sheep were fairly large, exhibits, the hogs especially being well represented in all breeds.

Ducks were also good exhibits, and show that the farmers are taking quite an interest in this necessary adjunct to the farm. The classes best represented seemed to be game chickens which in some ways is to be regretted, the best paying birds such as Plymouth rocks, etc., seeming to be a secondary recommendation to poultry raisers of this district. Geese, ducks, turkeys and pigeons were also a good exhibit.

NOTES OF THE FAIR

SORCERESS of a BEAUTIFUL UNDINE

THOUSANDS and the sands of years ago undines lived in the sea. Ancestors were they of the mermaids and much more wise and powerful than the mermaids. None among the undines was as wise as the beautiful Princess Lira. Always was she to be found at the feet of the undine sorceress, until she became as well versed in magic art as the witch herself.

One day as Lira crouched in the shadow of a partly submerged rock near the shore she espied afar a horseman. When he drew closer she perceived he was a very handsome prince. Thereupon she cast a magic spell upon the water, so that to the prince it seemed to be the part of the beach. Over a cliff plunged the horse with its rider, and the prince quickly rose to the surface of the water and struck out valiantly for the shore. But the arms of the undine twined about him and bore him down whom he was betrothed. But it so happened that Lira had fallen in love with him. Therefore, she caused him to postpone his departure and finally insisted upon detaining him against his will.

In Princess Lira, the younger sister of Lira, the prince had a great admirer. Observing his grief, she would have assisted him to escape had she been able to cope with the magic of the enchantress Lira.

One day, however, Lira burst in upon the prince, exclaiming:

"Now is your time to fly! Lira has gone to consult the old witch."

She led him rapidly to where the dolphins were stabled. Lira now wailed with all her heart that he would remain. Before he mounted she said to him wistfully:

"Shall we never see you again?"

"I fear not," replied the prince, "but "You are such a stupid doll," she said, "with big yellow eyes and a head that always turns the same way when you say 'Papa Mamma.' And you can't even stand by yourself. You see the fairy had found this mournful comfort in the fact that she could not make Rosalind a little happier.

"Rosalind," said she, "to amuse you I'm going to give you so that what you wish your doll would turn to, that form she will take."

Rosalind at once wished her doll was another little girl. But this little playmate was so much more clever and handsome than herself that the little prince paid all his attention to her instead of to Rosalind. In a jealous rage Rosalind wished the little girl were a beautiful cat.

She and the cat played together nicely for a while, until she tried to rub his fur for the prince. Then the cat sprang upon her and scratched her so that she began to cry.

After that she changed the cat into a dog. The dog ran away with the prince, and the cat was left alone.

Rosalind then wished, this time that the dog was changed into a beautiful flower. The flower, however, gave out such sweet perfume that the queen mother took it away from Rosalind and had it placed in her own chamber.

Rosalind sobbed and sobbed. "Oh, how I like my doll best of all, even if she is a stupid doll," she said to herself at last. "That I like my doll best of all, even if she is a stupid doll," she said to herself at last.

She had a confused idea that a beautiful lady was picking her up and was placing her tenderly in the carriage. Then she knew no more.

When Ceelle awoke she found herself in a room such as she had seen before only in her dreams. And the lady with the beautiful face was Rosalind, ever her and murmuring that the little girl would soon be well and running about.

For several weeks Ceelle lived in the rich lady's chateau, which stood in the country outside the village. Dur-

MAKING LACE UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF MADAME

LONG, dreary hours Ceelle spent each day in the low-ceilinged, cavernous basement. But Ceelle should consider herself very fortunate to obtain such employment, as most any person in the little Flemish village would tell you, for it was not every one that Madame Harcet would teach the mystery of lacemaking.

Besides, there were many hungry mouths at home to feed, and Ceelle's father was dead.

The little girl proved herself worthy of her teacher, however, and soon she was weaving intricate designs with a skill that delighted Madame. Yet, contentedly as she did her work no more than kept pace with her dreaming.

For Ceelle had dreams and visions of another existence among the people who would finally possess her beautiful lace.

A life such as Ceelle led does not bring ruses to a lassie's cheeks, and Ceelle was pale and weak and thin. Then, too, she had a "rough," which was caused, no doubt, by the damp air of the cellar, where the lace must needs be made.

Ceelle felt really ill this morning as she hurried to work, her wooden shuttle clicking over the rounded bobbins. While crossing a street she failed to perceive a carriage coming toward her. The next instant she was thrown to the ground.

She had a confused idea that a beautiful lady was picking her up and was placing her tenderly in the carriage. Then she knew no more.

When Ceelle awoke she found herself in a room such as she had seen before only in her dreams. And the lady with the beautiful face was Rosalind, ever her and murmuring that the little girl would soon be well and running about.

For several weeks Ceelle lived in the rich lady's chateau, which stood in the country outside the village. During that time the lady became very much attached to the little girl, so that when Ceelle became entirely well she was told that no longer would she work with Madame Harcet, but that for a long time she was to be the rich lady's daughter. It seems that Ceelle's mother had agreed to this plan, and Ceelle was willing, although it pained her to be away from her mother and her brothers and sisters. But before she would go to dwell with the rich lady she asked permission to spend a few more weeks with Madame Harcet. The lady could not understand the girl's reason for this wish, but at last she consented.

"Madame," pleaded Ceelle, when she was once more in the basement, "I have served you faithfully, have I not?"

"You have my child," admitted Madame; "you have done excellently."

"Then may I not make something for my own self during the next few weeks? I shall pay you for the thread just as soon as I can."

Madame graciously gave permission, and Ceelle set joyously to work. Her whole soul she put in the labor. At last the piece was finished, and she bade good-bye to Madame, after bidding her

As you have probably guessed, this little piece of rare lace was for the fish lady. She was deeply touched when Ceelle presented it to her, examining it intently, she questioned Ceelle about it. And when she learned that the design had been originated by the little girl, Ceelle had told her how much she liked all such pieces of artwork, she lady promised herself that she had found in Ceelle a genius for art. So Ceelle is now engaged in the most enjoyable study of all, and never dreamed of. Yes, she will dream, but now she has visions of the time when she will be a great artist and the pride of her benefactress.

beneath the waves. As soon as consciousness left him, Lira clasped upon his finger a magic ring, which would keep him from a further harm.

When the prince awoke he found himself upon a couch in the prince's palace. A magnificent estate it was, built from the top of the ocean.

"Where am I?" he murmured, dazed among his strange surroundings.

Immediately the Princess Lira came gracefully to him. "You are now the guest of my father, the king of the undines," said she. "I found you struggling in the embrace of a dreadful sea monster, rescued you, and brought you here."

After the prince had made known his gratitude to Lira, he was escorted through the wonderful palace and shown its wonders.

Although the handsome prince much appreciated the kindness of his friends, he longed all the while to return where he might see the princess to here is something to remember me by."

He then took from his finger the magic ring, which, strangely enough, he had not before noticed.

"I thank you," said the princess simply. "Then, to your great alarm, she saw the prince reel, grow deathly pale and fall at her feet."

Before Princess Lira could arrive the prince was dead. Her grief was inconsolable. "Foolish!" cried she, "if you not know he would drown without the magic ring. You have killed him!"

Although in a whisper it was, steadily she felt.

"Nay, my sister, your wicked enchantments have done this."

Yet, deep as was the grief of the Princess Lira and Lora, still mortal was that of the prince's in shore. He waited vainly for his lover's return.

ALLY, OF TUMBLEDOWN COTTAGE

A FRIEND IN NEED.

"If you are really so anxious to get away, tell us how you go alone to Spencer's, and we'll be there in a few days."

Now that her father had given this permission, Emily was not slow in packing her goods for the trip, and the next day she was on the way.

The Spencers lived in a little village on the side of a mountain and they had invited the Grahams to spend a vacation with them. Mr. and Mrs. Graham had yet to make arrangements before departing, but Emily had hardly known what to do with herself since school had closed, and was glad of the consent to go at once.

Arriving at the little station, Emily was met by Mr. Spencer in a light carriage, for there was still some little distance to go. He had seen him often in the city, and so they were well acquainted with one another.

Just before they reached the home of the Spencers they passed by an old shabby-looking barn that seemed to be kept from falling only by stout poles propped against the outside.

"Who owns this wretched place?" asked Emily, with interest.

"We call him 'Peter Tumble-down,'" answered Mr. Spencer; "and that old house over there is where he and his little girl live."

The house looked as badly in need of repair as the barn. As she looked Emily saw a dog of about the size of a little girl of about her own age, with a mass of tangled hair and a very tattered dress.

Mrs. Spencer welcomed Emily cordially, and she felt at home from the very first.

Everything was so new that Emily found much enjoyment in her walks about the place.

After a while she took longer trips from the house, and often passed by the barn of "Peter Tumble-down."

Sometimes she saw the ragged little girl, but as Emily was just a wee bit proud because she came from the city, and besides the girl was so very, very dirty-looking, she never spoke to her.

Nearby was a beautiful lake, with a tiny island right in the center of it. One day Emily ventured into a boat that lay by the shore and paddled out to the island.

Lying down to rest for a few moments she fell asleep, and it was late in the afternoon when she awoke.

You can imagine how frightened she was when she found that the boat had gone ashore and that there was no way of getting back to shore.

While she was wondering what to do, she saw approaching another boat, and in it the ragged girl of "Tumble-down Cottage."

"If you don't mind coming into my boat," said she shyly, when quite near, "I can take you to land."

"I'd be glad to," gratefully replied Emily, "and I'm much obliged to you for your trouble."

Emily soon learned that the little girl's name was Ally, that she never went to school, and that her dog, Gyp, was all she ever had to play with.

Ally really wasn't so bad once you knew her, and, too, you could not but pity her.

Emily thanked her again as she left for home, and they parted quite friendly.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham came the next day, so she had no chance to see Ally for some time. After that, however, they met often, and Emily soon found that although Ally had not been to school, there was nothing in the country that she and Gyp did not know.

Mr. Graham believes that Emily learned more from Ally about growing things than she ever learned in school.

Emily thinks so, too, and she has learned, besides, that though a little girl may be ragged, she may still be worth while having for a friend.

CUNNING SAYINGS

LITTLE HENRY, who had just moved to the country from the city of New York, was sitting on the porch with his brother Edgar. They had never seen lightning bugs before, so they were surprised when they saw several bugs flying and lighting in the air.

"They are bugs," cried Edgar.

"No, they're not," declared Irene; "they're bats - in the air!"

Little Tommy is very talkative, and on going out to sea with his father and mother the other night he was told that he mustn't speak until somebody asked him a question. After he had sat silent for half an hour, he could not stand it any longer, and he said, "I say, papa, when are they going to begin asking me questions?"

Little Henry was dining out, and was on his very best behavior. "Will you have light meat or dark?" asked his hostess, preparing to help him to chicken. "I'd like a drumstick, thank you; but I don't care at all whether it is white meat or dark," said he politely.

"Granny," said little Johnnie, as he counted - lot - out - somebody had given him, "can you eat nuts?"

"No, don't you eat nuts," said the old lady. "I haven't got any teeth."

"Well, then," said Johnnie, emptying his nuts into granny's lap, "I'll give you these - mind till - come back."

Sadie was 11 and Alice was 7. At luncheon Sadie said:

"I wonder what part of an animal a chop is - is it a leg?"

"Of course not," replied Alice; "it's the jawbone. Haven't you ever heard of animals using their chops?"

Little Joe was trying to dress himself after his bath. He got his shirt on front side behind. Looking ruefully down at himself, he said:

"Guess I'd better turn myself around so my shirt will button in front."

"Why do they put the man's flag on top of the schoolhouse?" asked the teacher, who wanted to instill a patriotic feeling.

"Because, ma'am," answered the head boy, "it's because the flag is there."

Two little girls walking in a field feared that a cow would attack them. "Let's go right on, and not as if we weren't afraid of her at all," said one.

"But, remember," the other said, "wouldn't that be deceiving the cow?"

BRAVE HEART

"SAFE I feel, and well protected, While Brave Heart is guarding me."

So says mother dear whenever I a soldier try to be.

"Course, it isn't that I'm daring, Or I'm very brave; For if just to me came danger I don't know how I'd behave.

When I was a tiny fellow, Everything quite easy seemed;

I'd kill tigers and great lions, Bears and elephants - I dreamed.

Now I'm big, I'm not so boastful, 'Cause I learn as well as own up. I'm not fond of ink, darkness, And I hate Ted Jones' bull pup.

But, if anything, whatever, To hurt mother dear would try, I would show that I'm her "Brave Heart" -

I would fight until I'd die!

Owing to an "annual" break down of the threshing Co. of Rugby, ample time was given to the men last week to assist the women folk in reinforcing their stock of provisions. A whole pig was caught, slaughtered, dressed and eaten in short order.

Miss McGurk and Miss Topp, spent the week end with Miss Swingle.

Miss Rankin spent Wednesday evening with Miss M. McGurk.

A number of young people were entertained Friday evening at Mrs. George McNair's.

Mrs. Otterline spent a week in Didsbury.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Gaddess and Family, visited Mr. and Mrs. R. Alloway.

What might have resulted in a serious accident happened last week to Mr. and Mrs. Otterline. While returning from town late one night the horses took a fit and stepped into it, they did not run far when the tongue tumbled and broke itself, distributing Didsbury stock on the river bend. The neighbors came early next morning to avoid the rush and got their week's supply of green groceries, dry goods and hardware; etc. The horses spent a "nightout" in the near shambles. E. A. Olson's tongue was taken back to town and replaced—Signed, It's me.

Interesting Services

Representatives of the Christian and Missionary Alliance arrive in town Thursday

Very interesting services are to be held in the Mennonite Church, Didsbury, beginning Thursday night at 8 o'clock, Oct. 16th and will continue until Sunday night Oct. 19th.

Rev. H. L. Stevens of Toronto, Ont., Traveling Supr. of the Alliance for Canada, arrived in the town on Wednesday and gave a stirring message on God's plan for the Evangelization of the world. Rev. Frank Hamill who has been a missionary in South China for the past seven years will give interesting accounts of the work in China and Rev. W. E. Menninger of Chicago and Mr. Steven will give earnest evangelistic and Missionary addresses. There will be services at 3 and 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and at 10.30 a.m., 3 and 7.30 p.m. on Sunday. Then at 8.30 Sunday night a large Missionary Mass Meeting is to be held addressed by these Alliance workers and Mr. Stevens will illustrate by ribbons the different religions of the world and the way people are spending their money in the home land. A fine supply of literature on the deeper life, foreign missions and kindred truths, also some beautiful mottoes, will be on hand at the week night services.

ESTABLISHED 25 YEARS

The Christian and Missionary Alliance was established in New York some 25 years ago by Rev. A. B. Simpson and since its inception has sent out over 500 missionaries. At present over 350 missionaries are in active service in China, Tibet, India, Africa, Palestine, Japan, and South America, besides several hundred native workers and evangelists. Rev. Wm. A. and Mrs. Shantz are among the faithful workers in Central China.

The alliance is also caring for over 700 orphan boys and girls in India. The total missionary receipts for last year were over $267,000. This work was not established as a denomination but as a society for the purposing of spreading abroad the deeper truths at home and the sending out of missionaries all over the world.

Mr. Stevens and Mr. Hamill will sing and a bright song service will be held each evening. The Torrey-Alexander Hymn books will be used. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Will Have to Pay $25 License

All Auctioneers who wish to do business in Didsbury will now have to pay a license fee of $25. This was the mandate of the Council which held a meeting on Tuesday morning to pass a bylaw to this effect. The cause was the fact that an auctioneer had been brought in from Calgary to auction off a stock of jewelry and silverware in town, and the Council thought that this was not right. After some squabbling by both parties to the dispute the auctioneer paid the license under protest and threatens to sue the town for the return of the $25. Some comment has been caused by the Council passing the bylaw at one meeting instead of letting it lay over, after giving two readings, till another meeting. The Municipal Ordinance says that if the Council are unanimous that they can give a bylaw three readings at one meeting when the bylaw becomes law.

Mr. Miller preached last Sunday at the Presbyterian Service held in the Hall.

Arrangements for the new school are going ahead, and a meeting will be called shortly.

George Dick has returned from Waldeck, Sask., where he spent the summer.

Ed Liesemer was kicked by a horse and for several days was unable to work but is around again.

On Saturday, October 17th a political meeting will be held in the Neapolis Hall at 8 p.m., the meeting will be addressed by Dr. Clark.

W. R. Coates had eighty bushels of oats to the acre.

The next meeting of the W.C.T.U. is to be held at the home of D.M. Stuart on Thursday October 22nd.

Mr. Jones preached last Sunday for the Methodist Church at the Berlin Schoolhouse.

On Sunday October 25th at the C. E. meeting held in the Berlin Schoolhouse, the annual election of officers will take place. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

Go to the blood, if you are to drive out Rheumatism. A Wisconsin physician, Dr. Shoop, does this with his Rheumatic Remedy, and with seeming success. Rheumatism, says the doctor, never did cure. Rheumatism is more than skin deep—it is constitutional always. Because of this principle, Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy is perhaps the most popular in existence. It goes by word of mouth from one to another, everywhere. Grateful patients gladly spread results. It is an act of humanity, to tell the sick of a way to health. Tell some sick one. Sold by H. W. Bad Fire at Stettler Stettler, Oct. 13.—Fully one half of the business portion of the town was burned to the ground early this morning and Leslie Mellor, a young man employed as clerk in Riggs and White's store lost his life by suffocation so rapid was the spread of the flames. The fire broke out in Beck's bowling alley and had made great headway before it was discovered, and nothing could check the rapid spread of the flames.

The following is a list of losses: Beck's bowling alley, J. B. Grinith's flour, feed and livery warehouse, Grand Union and Keith hotels, post office, Water's tailor shop, Merchants bank, Balls jewelry store, Mackie and Burris' implement warehouse, Julians' tailor shop, Staples lumber yard, Bowman and Lines' lumber yards, Emmericks' real estate, Burdick's produce store, T. Blain's newly erected residence and several other buildings. The losses are pretty well covered by insurance.

Leslie Mellor, the victim of the conflagration, slept over Riggs & White's store and evidently suffocated in bed owing to the rapid spread of the flames. The body will be shipped to Grand Valley, Ont., by the Oddfellows. Mellor was a highly esteemed young man of about 22 years of age and was employed as clerk in the store.—Edmonton Bulletin.

Stomach troubles would more quickly disappear if the idea of treating the cause, rather than the effect, would come into practice. A tiny, inside, hidden nerve, says Dr. Shoop, governs and gives strength to the stomach. A touch also goes to the heart and one to the kidneys. When these "inside nerves" fall, then the organs must follow. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is directed specifically to these falling nerves. Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment, patients say they realize a gain. Slightly H. W. Chambers.

Indigestion

Romach trouble is but a symptom of, and not itself a new disease. We think of Dropsies, flatulencies, and indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific nerve sickness—nothing else. It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular stomach remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brings that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had. For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and indigestion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend
